

36to7

A private companion for arranged introductions — from the first meeting to the day you say yes. Built on psychology, not astrology.

The same 36-point guna milan your families will run, and the same 7 vows a wedding asks for — kept, because they're the language everyone already speaks. What changed underneath: real questions about values, temperament and closeness, instead of planets and bloodlines.

36 points, built from 8 real questions

GUNA MILAN, REBUILT

Self-Worth & Direction

1 pt

Not shared blood — shared direction.

Power Balance

2 pts

Who leads, and whether it's fair.

Steadiness

3 pts

Stability you build, not one you're handed.

Intimacy Style

4 pts

How closeness feels, not how it's rated.

Rapport

5 pts

Do you actually like talking?

Temperament

6 pts

Different rhythms, syncing at intervals.

Life Vision

7 pts

What you're building, and with what tools.

Life Pace & Health

8 pts

Two strands, interwoven — not a chart.

7 vows, earned not ticked

SAPTAPADI, REBUILT

The First Honest Conversation

Say the true thing, not the easy one.

Meeting the Families

Two households learning to share a roofline.

Navigating a Real Disagreement

Crossing, then still walking together.

Sharing a Fear Out Loud

A knot named out loud starts to loosen.

Talking About the Next Ten Years

Two starting points, one point aimed at.

Weathering a Hard Season

The dip is real. The line keeps going.

Choosing Each Other, Plainly

Not agreeing to it. Choosing it.

~~was~~: planetary friendship. now: do you actually enjoy talking to each other.

Private. Never a shared score.
Your reflections stay yours — always.
